ENGINEERED FOR MEN WHO KNOW THAT THE BEST THINGS IN LIFE ARE COMPLICATED.

————— Portuguese Grande Complication. Ref. 3774:

The life of a watchmaker would be different if it weren't so complicated. In fact, it would be pretty monotonous. So it's just as well that IWC Schaffhausen has entire teams of specialists devoted to developing new mechanical complications, that consistently explore the bounds of what is possible. It's something Schaffhausen's engineers have been doing since 1868. And like the early pioneers of marine exploration, they are spurred on by one dream: the dream of discovering new territory. The Portuguese Grande Complication is the company's proud flagship and brings together many of the achievements of modern watchmaking. Housed compactly inside the case are a perpetual calendar that is mechanically programmed until 2499, a power reserve of 44 hours when fully wound, a perpetual moon phase display and a highly complex minute repeater. IWC. ENGINEERED FOR MEN.

RE-IMAGINE YOUR DREAM KITCHEN

At Thermador, our history of redefining the modern kitchen speaks for itself. From introducing the first built-in wall oven over 50 years ago to redefining gas cooktops with our patented Star® Burner, our thinking breaks both convention and performance limits. Our history of innovation also includes the first downdraft ventilation, first sealed electric cooktop and first built-in modular refrigeration. But we are not defined by innovation for innovation's sake. Our handcrafted appliances and their every feature and control are designed to make cooking easier, better and more rewarding. For those who love to cook, Thermador delivers a suite of appliances that are simply hotter, cooler, faster and better than anything the kitchen has seen.

PUBLISHERS' NOTE

WELCOME TO OUR ANNUAL HAUTE 100 ISSUE WHERE WE CELEBRATE THE CITY'S MOST INFLUENTIAL AND philanthropic people. We're glad to say we know many of them and are ecstatic when we get the chance to host them at our annual Haute 100 Dinner, which this year is taking place at PAMM with our partners Hublot, Dom Perignon and Fortune International.

We celebrate their successes almost as fervently as if they were our own because we are so proud of the people who are helping put Miami on the map from business to the arts and architecture. We learn their stories carefully, because this is our city's future history and we're proud to be part of it in some small way.

THE WHITE ALBUM

DIAPHANOUS, GOSSAMER AND BESPOKE ARE A FEW ADJECTIVES TO describe this Haute Couture creation. Raf Simons continues to surprise with his visionary take on Dior, which in the past was relegated for ladies who lunch. These days, its look is pure modernity. Should you want to procure this translucent cloud of silk, you'll need fittings in the city of lights—but a trip to Paris is always a delight.

THE CULINARY ARTS OF BESPOKE MIAMI LIVING

MARIA SHARAPOVA AND THE PORSCHE PANAMERA S E-HYBRID

BY KIMATNI D. RAWLINS

IF BEAUTY IS HERALDED BY THE EYE OF THE BEHOLDER, THEN it can be righteously articulated that performance remains in the clutches of the pilot. Whether it is superior match play at the Sony Open, riveting road bending on Germany’s infamous Autobahn or touring Miami’s Biscayne Blvd, accelerated performance, bespoke craftsmanship and defining leadership are precursors for elitism. So do you think it was coincidental that tennis great Maria Sharapova and Porsche collaborated and interchanged brand identities with one another? The answer is an emphatic no.

Luxury lifestyles are expressed through a myriad of stimuli and equations that manifest optimal comfort and impeccable convenience. Our most recent delight was orchestrated by way of the white sand beaches, crystal clear waters and scenic beauty of Miami Beach, Florida; the accouterments of the AAA Five Diamond St. Regis Bal Harbor Resort; time travel in Porsche’s first-ever plug-in hybrid vehicle better known as the S E-Hybrid and conversation with international sports star, entrepreneur and fashion mavin Maria Sharapova. Sound plausible? Absolutely. “Miami is a progressive market that exudes luxury and forward-thinking,” said Cristina Cheever, head of lifestyle and brand public relations, Porsche Cars North America. “It’s the perfect place to launch our series of exclusive Ride and Drive events featuring the equally progressive Panamera S E-Hybrid.”

Through the diverse roster of the Panamera family, Porsche is currently able to meet customer’s needs emblematic of style, grace, comfort and earth-friendly compassion with the introduction of the Panamera S E-Hybrid which is geared towards -- not only power and opulence -- but also efficiency and electric progress. Since past performance is not always indicative of future results the S E-Hybrid is instilled with a stronger electric motor than the prior generation model. In addition, its higher capacity battery is more energetic allowing for longer charges, which can be restored at home or via public charging stations. The “corporate social responsibility” factor benefits both Porsche and owners equilaterally. Though, let’s make no mistake, the Panamera is a polarizing piece of machine with nothing understated regarding its silhouette. Now a pillar of society, the 4-door sport car is a German symbol of success.

Of course Miami elevates the mind states of residents and visitors alike with tropical weather, delectable culinary experiences, entertaining nightlife and immense cultural experiences such as the Perez Art Museum, Bal Harbour, New World Center, Ziff Ballet Opera House and the Lowe Art Museum. Visiting the Sunshine State to attend the Sony Open and watch the “elegant assassin” in action was breathtaking. Especially since the 26-year-old, Russian-born player adopts beast mode when striking to her opponent's service box, yet moves pleasantly like a butterfly off court. It's the allure of pro sports where the athlete represents multiple personas while attracting millions to their respective fan base. Sharapova, who is Porsche's brand ambassador for the next three years, is no stranger to greatness. Not only does she adore the aggression of a Porsche 911 but also craves the amenities and ease of a Panamera, especially when traveling on tour. The relationship is a score for both parties since she's been victorious at all four women's Grand Slam tournaments and ranked number 1 for an aggregate 21 weeks in her illustrious career. "Maria Sharapova is an exceptional athlete. She combines top performance in her sports with elegance and power. These are precisely the qualities that are embroiled in our sports cars," stated Matthias Mueller, CEO of Porsche AG.

To be specific, our White S E-Hybrid plug-in was civil and well-mannered on the sun-kissed roads of Miami Beach. Acceleration was gradual and quiet as expected. It plugs into typical home outlets for convenience and is able to regenerate power for the 9.4 kWh lithium-ion battery when driving (E-CHARGE). Starting at $99,000, this model can deliver up to 22 miles on a can be made manually to the suspension height, transmission, traction control, rear spoiler deployment and HVAC settings. Select "Sport" mode and the system measures the Panamera's road reactions and adjusts steering, throttle, damping and gearing accordingly. "Sport Plus" elevates those algorithms and remains continuously aggressive through all gears. The busy but intelligent cockpit layout continues into the center stack which features another set of buttons to operate the navigation, audio, telematics and each entertainment service bundled within the Porsche Car Connect app. It's a vehicle you take your time with in Miami. On Ocean Drive you want to be recognized with infatuation.

good day in full electric mode (E-POWER) and is defined by its Acid Green brake calipers and trim highlights.

As stated the Panamera has a specification for every character type. Unlike many larger vehicles, it feels light on its feet and agile around seriously, curvy roads. Since the cockpit plants you low in the driver's position in correlation to the center console, you literally feel like a pilot, especially with its advanced array of switches, toggles and input buttons to engage various functions. For instance, press the center console switch (picture of exhausts tips) and the Panamera sings enchantingly through every gear. Here is where adjustments

It was a beautiful day of driving. We ended our tour back at the Regis which is an extravagant haven for those looking for the finer things in life. I spoke intimately with Maria before dining at the critically acclaimed J&G grill where Chef de Cuisine Brad Kilgore prepared nourishing miracles to our satisfaction. The tennis player spoke candidly about giving back to the community and running businesses outside of tennis. It's exhausting and tough but very much fulfilling she explained. "This is a really special day for me," said Sharapova. "I have had the privilege to be associated with some of the best brands in the world, but to be partners with Porsche, is such an amazing honor!"

TERRA TOWN

HOW THE GROVE
GOT ITS GROOVE BACK

BY HADLEY HENRIETTE

OPENING PHOTOGRAPHY BY EDUARDO FORD

WHEN I FIRST MET PEDRO AND DAVID MARTIN, the father and son team running Terra Group, they are sitting in Pedro's sunny corner office with starchitect Bjarke Ingels. The team was looking out at the future site of the an exciting project in Coconut Grove that promises to be Ingels' first completed building in the United States by the time the paint is dry and buyers put their keys in the locks in the door for the first time.

Terra Group had set out to work with an architect that would bring something totally different to the project and found it in internationally acclaimed Danish architect Ingels, a big, young personality who has, up to this point, reached more people in the USA through his popular TED talks than his work with BIG (Bjarke Ingels Group).

"Every building we have built has had a different design style, and it's a trademark we really want [our work] to have," says Pedro. Not only did Terra want to solidify their architecturally adventurous status with this project, they wanted to "evolve" and take it to the next level. "We want to create environments that enhance people's lives and we want to bring the best thinkers in the world, to Miami," adds David. "We don't want to be celebrating mediocrity.

That level entails getting an outside-the-box thinker to design Grove At Grand Bay. Ingels has created an ambitious plan for two twisting towers that appear to be dancing. "The view is perhaps the most significant amenity, so we designed them to stand side by side, but not block each other," says the architect. "The diagonal, by definition, is wider than the orthogonal and allows the front of the building to expand on more frontage. They actually respond to the context they are in and to each other. A lot of developer projects seem as if were designed in a dark room and then just dumped it in place."

"Developers don't usually like taking these risks with architects, even those who have creative and innovative solutions to design issues. Every time you hear "starchitect," you hear of the budget busts, the delays in schedule," says David. But working with Ingels, who was Wall Street Journal's "Architectural Innovator of the Year" in 2013, has given them none of those headaches.

It's not just its unusual shape and custom spiraling columns used in its construction that will make this this building very precious. There are lots of other things too. The Grove is the first residential building in Florida with insulated glass windows to provide both thermal and sound insulation. "You can press a button and it becomes opaque," says Pedro. "This way we minimize the thermal impact and the building's dependence on air conditioning, adds Ingels.

They also used thicker concrete slabs between floors, 12' loft ceilings, smart home technology, and kept floor plans to only two units per floor that are as big as 10,000 square feet. Add the Silver LEED certification to amenities that range from a huge, state-of-the-art spa, four pools, pet spa, a butler for each tower and on site-chef... suddenly their starting price of $3 million seems like a bargain.

“WE WANT TO CREATE ENVIRONMENTS THAT ENHANCE PEOPLE’S LIVES AND WE WANT TO BRING THE BEST THINKERS IN THE WORLD, TO MIAMI,” ADDS DAVID. “WE DON’T WANT TO BE CELEBRATING MEDIOCRITY.”

It’s no wonder that less than a year after breaking ground, the building only has seven units remaining and buyers will be moving in early next year to what is sure to be one of the most iconic buildings in Miami, let alone Coconut Grove, for many decades to come.

The project means more to the Martins than just selling units and making their mark on the area. They really want to transform the entire neighborhood and bring Coconut Grove back to its former glory. Pedro has lived in Coconut Grove for 25 years and naturally he and David feel strongly about it and its history.

“PanAm had their sea plane operations right here,” says David motioning towards the waterfront. “In World War I they used this as an air force base and there were more people in Coconut Grove than anywhere else. It was really the first big settlement of people [in Miami] and gives you a sense of history. Mary Brickell took off, Design District is taking off, but it’s all manufactured. It doesn’t have that organic vibe, the soul. You can’t fake people out; they get tired of that.”

He continues, “Regatta Park, 20-acre park that’s going to be designed by amazing people, is going to happen. We’re going to redevelop the Coconut Grove bank property—we’re doing a design competition for that. Inside the heart of the grove, there’s two strategic pieces that are currently in development right now.”

Ingels says, “When I say the name in Copenhagen, people ask, ‘Is that the name of the project or the name of the place?’ I tell them ‘No, it’s an actual city called Coconut Grove!’ It just sounds like something from Peter Pan.” He’s not just excited by the name, he also loves the verdant nature of the area and is focused on “reGroving” the grove with indigenous plants. For their elaborate plans, which include greening areas that are normally concrete, they have called upon celebrated landscape architect Raymond Jungles. They are also trying to create more connectivity with the surrounding area by ceding some of their land to create more crosswalks and paths to leave the building.

He’s using indigenous materials inside too. “For me, using [native] materials that people here might have forgotten or don’t care about anymore like iolite or keystone is a joy. The best possible interpretation of “The Grove” has been the mission from the get go,” explains Ingels.

Terra’s next level plan also includes GLASS, a hyper-modern glass tower in Miami Beach’s South of Fifth neighborhood that is currently under construction. The building was designed by award-winning Miami architect Rene Gonzalez and boasts only 10 units for its 18 floors. Practically sold out, beginning at $8 million for 3,400 square feet, the numbers demonstrate just how sought-after the building really is.

The Martins are very satisfied with the results so far. David says, “One of the important things is that we’re trying to bring in 50 percent of our buyers are local, which in my opinion, is a true test.” He plans to live in the building himself with his young family and enjoy the benefits of the family-oriented neighborhood they are set about improving even further.

“Our family wants to build great buildings,” explains the younger Martin. “Earlier in our career we played it safe, but if we can be the developer with the most amazing architects in the world, with that expertise, that’s the secret right now.”

PIAGET SPONSORS A TEAM THAT CAN GO ALL THE WAY

BY HADLEY HENRIETTE PHOTOGRAPHY NICK GARCIA

What do polo and watches have in common? Piaget. The haute horlogerie company has been known for watches tied to the sport of kings since 1979. It began with the Piaget Polo, a brushed gold watch with a linear feel that soon adorned the wrists of many a jetsetter. To celebrate the Piaget Polo's 30th birthday and take the concept to the next level, the company released the FortyFive collection in 2009. The collection includes a Lady's update on the original in rose gold and a sporty rubber and titanium model that looks great on the polo field.

To add to the superlative timepieces, after three decades of sponsoring the sport of kings, they now have a superlative polo team. The foursome is comprised of the famous brothers Pieres: Facundo, Gonzalo, Nicolás and their brother-in-law, Mariano Aguerre. Facundo is currently ranked the number two player in the world while Gonzalo and Nicolás are numbers six and seven, respectively. They play under the name of Ellerstina Piaget and were famous for their black shirts, even before they were adorned with the name "Piaget."

"Black is my favorite color and for me, it represents the team very well," says Facundo looking down at the sporty black timepiece on his wrist. "They've been very supportive to us and our team," he continues. "We always admired the brand. We all like watches and loved the idea of having a sponsorship by Piaget for the team. Now that it is happening, we are very happy. Piaget has never won the Open so I really want to do that for them." The Pieres brothers are prodigies of Argentina's polo dynasty that began with their father, the legendary Gonzalo Pieres Sr. "When we were kids, we used to watch our dad a lot," Gonzalo recalls. "He was one of the best players at that time, if not the best. I was really proud of him. It was always a dream to become a polo player professionally and while everything came quite naturally [with the sport], we do try very hard." "It's a sport with a lot of a lot of passion. We have a connection with the horse and we are all together. It's a really nice sport for sure," says Nicolás.

So how does it feel for them to play against each other as they occasionally do? Gonzalo explains, "I prefer not to play against them because it is a dangerous game and it's much better to not play against your brothers, but sometimes you have to. But when I get to the field, I want to win. I try to anticipate what they are thinking so I use what I know to my advantage." Polo isn't the only ball-and-stick sport the brothers excel at. When it comes to golf their handicaps are almost as good, even if the tables are a bit turned. Nicolás and Gonzalo are close to scratch with each boasting a 2 handicap, while Facundo trails. Gonzalo says, "We started playing with my father and now every time we can, we go to play a round together."

They especially enjoy playing Trump International in West Palm Beach almost as much as they enjoy polo at the International Polo Club in Wellington, FL. "I enjoy playing here," says Nico. "It's really competitive and anyone can beat anyone here. Next to Argentina, it's one of the best places to come to play polo." And they have many places to play. The players travel all around the globe for games both on the Ellerstina Piaget team and other matches on other teams. Ping-ponging between championships all over the world from tournaments in the United States to the U.A.E., France, England, Venezuela, Spain and Argentina. The must-stops, of course, include the Piaget World Snow Polo Championship in Aspen and the Piaget Gold Cup in Wellington.

WOMAN OF SUBSTANCE

GOOD

ANA CRISTINA DEFORTUNA IS FORTUNE INTERNATIONAL'S LUCKY CHARM

BY HADLEY HENRIETTE • PHOTOGRAPHY ALISSA CHRISTINE

Stepping into the Jade Signature sales center, with its light, bright interiors awash in white marble, is a transformative experience. It's easy to forget you are in a Sunny Isles strip mall across the street from the future site, rather than in the gleaming tower already. Standing next to a six-foot model of the property is Ana Cristina Defortuna, one half of the married duo behind Fortune International, and their handful of superlative projects. The most famous of which is their Jade collection of properties.

"In China, people gift jade for good luck. That's how we chose the name for project," says the petite powerhouse of the group that includes Jade, Jade Ocean and now Jade Signature, a retro-modern 57 story tower in Sunny Isles designed by Herzog & de Meuron with interiors by Pierre Yves Rochon and landscaping by Raymond Jungles.

As she looks around the all-star project's sales center, it is clear that Ana Cristina has pride of ownership, and she should; not only is she Fortune International CEO Edgardo Defortuna's wife, she is his confidante and co-conspirator in love, life and business who helped Fortune grow internationally. She traveled extensively and developed strong connections with many international brokers. "We host them for dinner when they come to Miami, get to know their children and recommend doctors," she says. In a word, they've become friends.

She and Edgardo established Fortune Development in 1998. "We decided to start building our own projects," she says. For Fortune's Development division, she selects the designers who work on each project, and collaborates with them on every aspect of the buildings, from the amenities to the décor of the common spaces. Another talent Ana Cristina has is accounting. "Numbers were always my thing, since I was very young," she says.

Ana Cristina was raised on a large estate in Peru, where she had dogs and horses and enjoyed a lot of freedom to do as she pleased. "I couldn't wait for the weekend to begin," she remembers. "On Saturdays, I would wake up at dawn and get the leftover materials that were around the property." Cuttings from gardeners, bits of wood and roof tiles from repair men, fabric pieces in the laundry were all fair game to beautify her dollhouse. "I think that's where my love for architecture started, actually," she says with a laugh.

So idyllic was her experience in Peru that she intended to stay there for college. "I was very close to my parents, especially to my mom," she explains. That all changed the first time she visited her elder sister, who was in Boston. "I saw this amazing city and visited the university. I saw how the teachers did their lectures: the auditoriums, the books. It was a totally different world. From then on, I decided I could not go back to school in Peru."

So she attended Boston University, where she double majored in Finance and Business Administration and moved to Miami following school. Interestingly, her parents had moved to Key Biscayne, down the street from a young Edgardo Defortuna.

Edgardo's father was the founder of the Argentinian Chamber of Commerce and he befriended Ana Cristina's father, the founder of the Peruvian Chamber of Commerce. Ana Cristina recalls, "He had been trying to get a date with me and I was so horrible because I was just having fun with my friends and thought he was way too serious. He was so quiet and when you're young, the one that gets your attention is the funny one or the best dancer or the loud one. Edgardo was none of those things. It was hard for me to really get to know him."

Fate intervened one night when Ana's father wasn't able to make a Chamber meeting at the Defortuna's home and sent her in his stead. This time, when she saw Edgardo, she agreed to a date, and when she went, something clicked. "We've been married 19 years now. We're very, very lucky. I really think I found my soulmate," she says with a smile.

The couple now has three boys, Andres, Alexander and Edgardo, who they are raising on their palatial Key Biscayne compound. Busy as they are growing Fortune International, Ana Cristina and Edgardo put family first. "We travel with them and take them everywhere. We take them to the projects we are building and they think what we are doing is so cool," she says. Of course, what they are doing is cool and their Jade Signature tower might just be the coolest.

"We have very important international buyers from around the world," she says of Jade Signature. "They are CEOs from top companies that came to Miami, saw everything and decided that Jade was the place for them. That gives us incredible pride and satisfaction," she says. Undoubtedly they fall for the project, but probably also, given the chance, Ana Cristina. Her warm personality, coupled with her experience as a South American coming to the US seals the deal. "In most cases, I've been in many countries, which helps. If they're Egyptian, I've been in Egypt. If they're from Turkey, I've been in Turkey," she says giving an insight to the secret of Fortune's success and a flash of their secret weapon: Ana Cristina's broad -and genuine - smile.

MASTER CRAFT

TOM COLICCHIO BRINGS CLEAN
CUISINE TO MIAMI BEACH

Tom Colicchio has affected the national palate in countless ways. His popular New York City restaurants, Gramercy Tavern and the subsequent Craft, focused on simple, clean farm-to-table cuisine that ignited the locavore spark that set the country's dining scene on fire. They also have earned him a total of five James Beard awards and a foot in the door on Bravo's Top Chef, on which he has been a starring judge now for 10 seasons. One documentary, three cookbooks and 12 restaurants later, Colicchio is poised to bring his brand of extraordinary cooking to Miami Beach's new 1 Hotel & Residences. With 1 Hotel's eco-chic ethos that include interiors made out of driftwood and other natural, high-quality materials, it seems a match made in heaven.

HL: I think you started this whole farm-to-table thing.

TC: I'm not going to take credit for that, but I will say I was an early adopter. Before I took my first chef's job, I was working in France and was just amazed at the quality of the ingredients. Then, when I got back to New York, I started going to the Green Market, and things were just starting to happen and I got really excited. I wanted to meet the farmers; and know where my food was coming from. The food was just better and fresher.

HL: So what did you do first?

TC: I was probably the first person to make it so much about the simplicity of the food and about the product. It was literally a piece of fish on the plate with olive oil, salt and pepper. I always had this thing in my head that I wanted the perfect plate of peas, and we can only keep that dish on the menu if the peas that come in are just great. That's why Craft started with a plate of peas.

HL: You really stand out from the pack, chef-wise. What makes you different?

TC: I don't use recipes. I don't care to use recipes. I started cooking when I was young, but was very ADD – I couldn't get through a recipe! So I wrote Think Like A Chef, which doesn't have many recipes. It's about teaching people how to be creative and how to look at food differently. One chapter really explains how to look at a single ingredient and make something delicious. After all, what is wrong with just having a plate of sautéed morels?

HL: Tell me about Top Chef.

TC: I know it's really big out there [motions to the world at large], but it's a small part of my life. It takes five weeks of the year. But it is really great when we all get together at the judges' table. Sometimes we argue, but you know when you get "it." You know when a chef is working head and shoulders above the other chefs. It typically comes down to pedigree, meaning where they worked, who they worked with, how they were trained.

HL: What's the most important thing in a kitchen?

TC: Honesty about the ingredients. And creating a culture where we say that we take care of our employees before our guests. If you don't take care of your employees, how can you expect them to take care of your guests?

MPH OFFERS LUXURY CAR, YACHT AND JET RENTALS

BY LEXI WILLIAMS

SINCE TAKING OVER THE FAMILY BUSINESS IN 2007, Brett David has brought Prestige Imports success on a global scale. His marketing prowess and individualized approach made the exotic car dealership the country's highest-selling Audi showroom and a favorite among wealthy foreigners looking for Lamborghinis and Lotus automobiles.

Now David is lending his business savvy to a new project: luxury rentals. Longtime pals Liram Sustiel and Stac Yagu approached David with the idea of an airport-based exotic car rental for the affluent. The duo, were both successful entrepreneurs in their own right but craved a sexier line of work. Sustiel owned a successful flooring company while Yagu had SoBlo blowout bar. After hearing their pitches, David recognized that it was the duo's true love of exotic cars, not just the possibility of a lucrative payout, that inspired them and agreed to join in.

Thus, the MPH Club was born. MPH's fleet is purchased entirely from Prestige and the company focuses on providing the best luxury rentals for the world's most discerning drivers. "We're not about renting the life. We're about delivering an experience to people that already have the life," says David.

Sustiel and Yagu further refined the collection by insisting on an all-white fleet. While many may picture a bright orange Lambo as the ideal Miami rental, David thinks otherwise. "Our clients are not those kind of guys, so we keep it very understated, very subtle. White can blend in everywhere. It's less ostentatious." The pristine collection includes the brand-new Lamborghini Aventador, the Bentley Flying Spur, the Rolls Royce Ghost, the Ferrari 458 Italia and the Audi R8.

With the company's headquarters in a private hanger at the Miami International Airport, it only makes sense for MPH to get into aircrafts, as well. Helicopters are available for romantic seaside tours or for making a grand entrance, Miami-style. Clients looking for something more executive can book from a selection of private jets belonging to David's trusted Prestige clients. Whether on the road or off, MPH club is quickly making a name for itself in luxury transportation.

"I love developing brands," David says of the six month-old company. "I love being able to take something that everybody's done, spinning it with my own little light, and rolling."

Behind the Scenes:

The 2014 Miami New Construction Show

INTERVIEW WITH ANITA FUNTEK, CEO By Jessica M. Jiron

Miami's luxury real estate market is back and glistening with over 200 upscale skylines sprouting throughout the city. The Miami New Construction Show is broker Anita Funtek's novel idea of bringing together developers, buyers, and realtors at the Miami Beach Convention Center for 3 days, August 29, 30 and 31st. I sat down with Anita and we spoke about the Miami New Construction Show.

Q: With five more months to "raising the curtain" on the 2014 edition of the Miami New Construction Show, how are things coming along?

Better than we expected, actually. Developers immediately expressed their enthusiasm for the concept, and as of now close to 50% of the booths have been reserved. We believe that we will close our list of exhibitors within the next two months. We have also been working closely with an advertising agency to build a multidisciplinary communication campaign in order to promote the event to a variety of target audiences from South America, Europe, Canada, and of course the United States. We are expecting over 35,000 visitors for the 2014 edition, composed of buyers, investors, real estate brokers, real estate agents, analysts, architects, interior designers, and other publics.

Q: Let me play the devil's advocate for a minute and ask why you think your event has been welcomed by the real estate market?

If I were to summarize it in one word I would say: efficiency. We have designed this event with the objective of saving time, energy, and money for all the stakeholders in the real estate market of South Florida. Developers in this market must travel within and outside the U.S. to promote luxury living in their fabulous new condominiums. The Miami New Construction Show brings 35,000 visitors to the Miami Beach Convention Center during 3 days. For developers, there is not much to think about. After two minutes presenting the event, they are on board. The same benefits apply to buyers and investors. There are over 200 luxury towers planned in South Florida right now. Buyers want to have choices, compare among them and make a decision.

Q: Aren't there similar events already in place that serve the same purpose?

We strongly support any event that can contribute to the growth of the market. While there are a number of events that are trying to bring together developers with realtors, the Miami New Construction Show has different objectives. We want to create a marketplace where developers will meet national and international buyers, and contribute to market growth in our own level. We do not see ourselves as competitors but as actors with common interests.

Q: Do you think the timing is appropriate for an event such as this one?

Yes, we do believe the timing is right, and that is why we are doing it. In its Q4-2013 edition, the Douglas Elliman Report stated that "the real estate market of South Florida transitioned from a recovering market to a recovered market." The market registered higher sales, higher prices, fastest days in the market, and a reduced distressed market share. This is an extremely positive performance, so yes, this is the right time for the Miami New Construction Show. Before 2013, it would have been too early because recovery was still undergoing. Now that the market has recovered, the show will positively contribute to market performance in the years to come, especially with the increased number of international buyers seeking secure investments to park their money.

Q: Why so much emphasis on international buyers?

You need to understand that international buyers accounted for more than half of the real estate sales in South Florida during 2013. With political instability and sluggish national economies in their countries, international buyers are in search of sound investments to protect their financial assets. South Florida real estate is becoming an ideal destination for these financial assets, notably with buyers from Venezuela, Brazil, Argentina, Colombia, Mexico, France, Italy, Spain, Russia, and Canada. For our exhibitors to have a successful participation in the show, we needed to focus on this segment of the market. We worked really hard to make the show a one-stop shop for international buyers by including among the exhibitors property managers, immigration lawyers, tax advisors, accountants and others.

Q: How do you see the future of the Miami New Construction Show?

Miami has revamped itself from a city where people come to play and have fun to a city where people can enjoy living. An increased cultural offering, a growing economy, an international airport connecting the city to the rest of the world, and several other factors will keep attracting new residents to the city of Miami. In this context, we believe the real estate market in South Florida has a tremendous potential in the next years and we want to support and accompany that growth with a high end quality exhibition that will deliver value to all its stakeholders. ■

WARREN TRICOMI SOUTH BEACH BOASTS GREAT SERVICE, BEAUTIFUL DÉCOR AND STAR STYLIST EMILIANO DE PASQUAL

Underneath Miami Beach's W Hotel is an airy salon that caters to clients who are accustomed to the best of everything. Owned by Evan Kaye, Warren Tricomi South Beach is part of the salon chain known worldwide for defining hair trends season after season. The salon defines itself by having the best of the best stylists, the most recent arrival of which is Emiliano De Pasqual, a star stylist from New York who has also made waves as working in Italy and London.

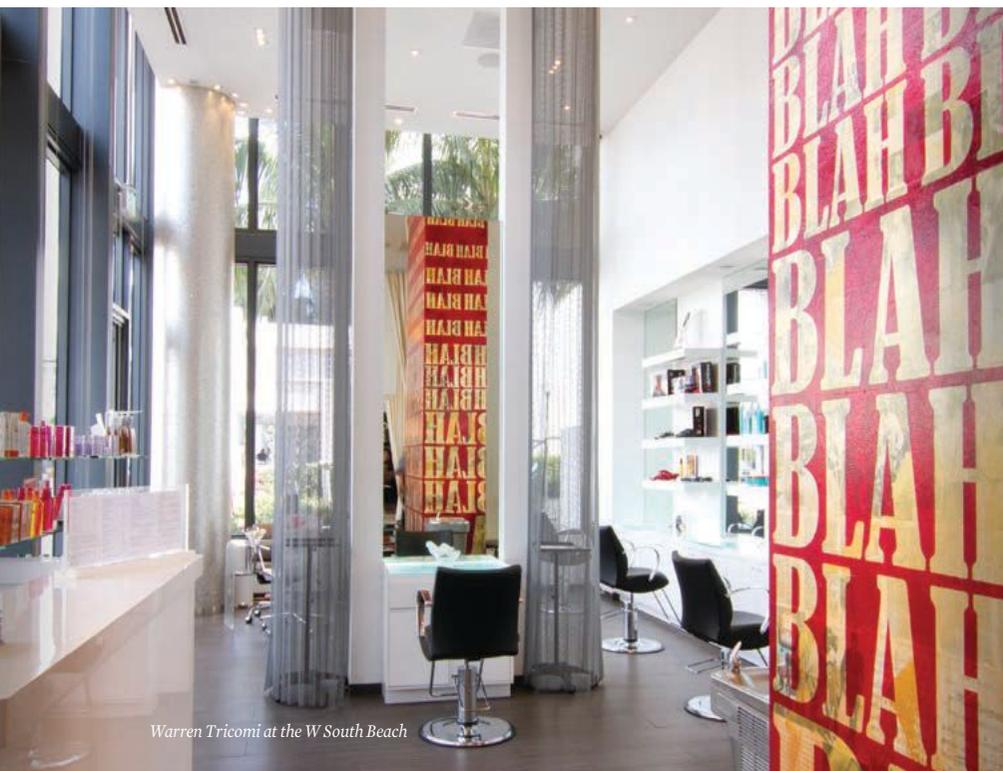

The Italian-born master coiffeur has been shifting his time from Warren Tricomi's Plaza Hotel location in New York to the company's first Florida location. In two years, he's gathered quite a following on Miami Beach, but still goes back one week a month to service his many high-profile clients like Molly Sims, Naomi Campbell, Miranda Kerr and Olivia Palermo, who simply couldn't live without his talents.

Even though he has been working for more than 15 years with a very elite clientele, he has the same enthusiasm and passion for every person that sits in his chair. Not one to hold back his personal (and spot-on) opinions, he wins over his clients one incredible cut and color at a time.

"I don't really follow trends," Pasqual says. "When you follow trends, everyone starts to look the same and I think clients feels best when they look unique. I'd rather focus on elevating my client's beauty by complementing their features with the best style for them."

This philosophy resonates well with clients. While they do get their fair share of VIPs from the hotel, a significant portion of their clientele is made up of regular local clients who can't get enough the salon. "Miami is very transient," owner Kaye explains. "So keeping your clientele says a lot about the salon."

The location might have something to do with this, as well. A beautifully decorated, bright white storefront features six styling stations, crystal chandeliers and lush furniture. Contemporary artworks also define the space with a wall installation by Peter Tunney and a diamond-dusted photograph of Madonna by Marco Glabiano. "We're in a nice clean space with a lot of sunlight," says De Pasqual surveying the bright salon with a smile. "It's a great atmosphere to create in."

PARADISE CREATED

RELATED GROUP'S PARAISO BAY PROMISES TO MAKE EDGEWATER A DESTINATION

BY SARAH DRIKS

BUSINESS IS BOOMING FOR THE RELATED GROUP AND they're showing no signs of slowing down. Carlos Rosso, President of Condominium Development for The Related Group takes us through Miami's real estate market and the astonishing 17 projects they have in the works.

The biggest is Paraiso Bay, a zen-like complex in Edgewater where the first of four towers is already 80% sold out and slated to break ground soon. The project takes advantage of a long-neglected stretch of bayfront property that, until recently, was surprisingly vacant. To give customers a taste of what awaits them, Related has created a wood-laden sales center, with an earthy-yet-modern atmosphere hard on the sparkling Biscayne Bay. Set back 20 feet from the water's edge, Paraiso Bay will incorporate ample green space, a much-needed concept in Miami. Paraiso Bay is more about creating a neighborhood than simply just another development. It is set to completely transform the entire area.

"It's not like we are a home builder, where all of our homes look the same," says Carlos Rosso. "All of our buildings are different from each other, and we love that because we are mostly competing against ourselves."

With a beautifully tasteful design by Keith Hobbs of United Designers, Related takes advantage of Paraiso's wonderful location. With the bay on one side, midtown on another and wonderful views of downtown, the panorama is sure to be spectacular. The view isn't the only thing that seem to go on forever. Paraiso's units are much larger than most, attracting families and those looking to enjoy the open space Edgewater has to offer. The expansive $3 million penthouse is destined to be the property's crowning glory. The first tower is nearly sold out, with international buyers traveling from around the world to put down hefty deposits to prove they are serious.

"I think people are looking at Miami and saying, 'this is an incredible place.' In the last 10 years, Miami has sophisticated itself and become more of an international city. Art Basel has attracted a lot of people who wouldn't have come to Miami before," explains Rosso. "Now they fly in with their G5s, and see the landscape and the bay with its little islands. Once they are here they experience the beautiful beaches and the great weather and they see that it's one of the most incredible cities in the US and they want to be part of it." It's all, as they say, in the approach.

COOKING UP QUALITY

SUSAN ROCCO, PRESIDENT OF THE KITCHENWORKS, SHARES HER COMPANY'S RECIPE FOR SUCCESS

THEY SAY THE KITCHEN IS THE HEART OF THE HOME, and no one understands that sentiment better than Susan Rocco, President of The Kitchenworks. With an eye for exquisite design, Susan and her husband Armand have helped customers design the kitchens of their dreams for the past 25 years.

The company is best known for its namesake, but The Kitchenworks also designs and builds custom bathrooms, bars and entertainment centers. “We love to go shopping with clients,” Rocco says. “When they hire us, we try to steer them on the right path. We love to be creative and we try to throw out good ideas.” Rocco enjoys incorporating trends while keeping an eye on timeless design that “won’t look dated in 15 years.” While The Kitchenworks design team has moved toward the sleek, streamlined look that has become increasingly popular, she works to give it the laid-back South Florida style by implementing cozy touches in what she dubs “classic, warm contemporary.”

To build these dream kitchens, The Kitchenworks calls on Dutch Made, an American custom cabinetry company with Amish heritage, but cutting-edge technology and techniques, for her most high-end jobs. “We have a great relationship,” Rocco says of the 24 years she’s done business with the company. “Because [the work] is done in a big, beautiful factory, you get that perfect finish that’s got a great warranty. They do it to a science; every dot and tittle is perfect.” The Kitchenworks has a unique and extensive showroom, boasting full-scale model kitchens with working top-grade appliances by Miele, Viking, Sub-Zero and Electrolux that customers can try in the showroom before they buy.

There is also a vast array of tile, granite, quartzite and door samples for clients to peruse. If one of those isn’t just right, The Kitchenworks team can create custom colors and finishes to turn the picture in the client’s imagination into reality. The company is well-known for superb customer service; clients receive one-on-one support from staff members, with appointments often lasting up to three hours if they choose. “We want to make it beautiful,” Rocco says of each project. “We want something that shows the personal touches, which is what I think makes a house a home.”

BEST FACE FORWARD

MIAMI'S FACE MAN HAS A NEW WEAPON FOR THE BODY

BY HADLEY HENRIETTE

DR. JHONNY SALOMON IS MIAMI'S FACE MAN. AN ARTISTIC talent, Dr. Salomon treats the face as his canvas; employing the latest technology at his South Miami Med Spa where patients not only get operated on, but recover in style. We sit down with the doctor to discuss the all-important face, as well as a new surgery-free technology he's been employing with aplomb to the hard bodies of Miami to spectacular effect.

HL: At what age do you suggest patients start considering their first facelift?

JS: I'm a big advocate for addressing the issue before as the early signs of aging present. However, it is important that the aging process have taken form in order for the facelift to take a positive effect. In one's early 40s I would recommend a forehead lift with eyelid surgery and often times a neck lift may be appropriate. A full facelift is usually a better option for someone in their late 40s and early 50s, but every individual is different. I think the right time to seek invasive facial procedures is when you look in the mirror and feel that what you see on the outside isn't a reflection of the youth you feel inside.

HL: What makes you so good at facework?

JS: In order to deliver masterful results, one must pay incredible attention to detail, have aesthetic judgment and take extreme care when performing this procedure. It is necessary that both the loss of elasticity and volume are addressed in order to reverse the signs of aging.

We are as unique as our fingerprints therefore each patient needs to be addressed as an individual. What works for one patient may not work for another. The pre-op evaluation is a very important process in addressing the surgical needs

HL: So you employ other techniques to fend of aging before then?

JS: Botox, fillers and skin tightening technologies such as Thermage are excellent, non-invasive procedures that can be used to address the early aging process. These are great options available before facelift surgery is needed.

HL: Fat Grafting?

JS: Fat grafting is where we remove fat from one part of the body and re-inject it to areas which have volume loss. You can rejuvenate the jaw line, the nasolabial fold, the cheeks, and even a little bit of the brows and lips to some degree- it's very versatile. In addition, there's also a small amount of stem cells within the fat that can provide rejuvenation for the skin.

HL: You've been doing a lot of Coolsclupting lately. Is that the new liposuction?

JS: Coolsclupting is a brother procedure to liposuction. It is a great technology that allows us to remove fat without surgery. A lot of people want fat reduction in their back, abdomen or thighs but they don't want to go through the process of surgery. With one session you can expect a 25% reduction in fat and with an additional treatment up to a 50% reduction.

How does it work?

JS: Fat is more sensitive to the cold than the skin. So we operate at a level of cold where the fat is affected, but the skin is not harmed. That's how it works. It's just below 0 Celsius, that's the magic temperature.

HL: So what happens to the fat cells? They are frozen and then they die?

JS: The fat cells are frozen and about 25% of them will no longer be alive following the procedure. Your body will then slowly eliminate the fat cells through the lymphatic system and then through your urine.

HL: Is it really cold when you do it? After all you are freezing the fat!

JS: During the first few minutes as the cooling begins you will feel a little pressure and cold. This soon dissipates. Most patients read, work on their computer, watch a movie or even take a nap during their treatment. Your mind can perform a high level task during the procedure.

HL: How long does it take?

JS: It depends on how many areas need to be treated. Patients can be here as little as one hour or as much as eight hours. The procedure is non-surgical, so typically you return to your normal activities immediately and be back at work after the session is over.

Discussing new things - I am excited to reveal my new lifestyle blog featuring regular updates about fashion, beauty and style. It will feature my views and the opinions of some of the top contributors, all very accomplished and successful in their respective fields. Check it out at www.leablackink.com

As much as I look forward to the summer in LA, spending quality time with my family and friends, I do miss my office and the staff that works so hard every year to promote Lea Black Enterprises, The Consequences Charity and the many different projects we are always working on. It is always fast paced, crazy and for the most part fun. We recently had a visit from Heather McDonald, a close friend, New York Times Bestselling author and regular contributor and actress on Chelsea Lately. Heather was in town and on tour with Chelsea as part of her new show "Uganda Be Kidding Me - Live Tour" and popped into our office. Here is a picture of Heather and me. She is wearing the Passport Gold bag, one of my new recent designs available through my website www.theworldofleablack.com. It retails for about $250.00. I am, of course, holding one of my custom ordered and designed Lea Couture Medium bags, they start at about $3,995.00 - very Haute Living!

We are working hard on the next charity event and have some exciting news regarding The Black's Annual Gala. Check out our website www.theblacksannualgala.com for regular updates, including entertainment. And as we start to enjoy this hot weather, remember, protect and cover your skin with sunscreen, drink lots of water and create activities that you and your family can participate in and enjoy outdoors.

SPRING FLING

Pastels and brights are always perfect for spring, but this season they have a twist: they are translucent. Pinks and blues take on a new character when given a third dimension when the light goes through them. It's fun wherever you find it—on a lamp from Poltrona Frau, pair of perfect shades from Christian Roth or a dazzling pair of earrings. Range Rover even debuted a new model with a transparent hood this month so how's that for a trend? While we don't have that just yet in Miami, transparent works absolutely perfectly right here, right now.

SARAH SAVES VENICE

NYC'S SAVE VENICE BALL RAISES MONEY FOR THE SINKING CITY IN THE HAUTEST WAY

FRIDAY NIGHT AT THE PIERRE IN NYC could have easily been mistaken for a party scene from The Hunger Games. The costumes at the Save Venice Ball were a feast for the eyes—featuring feathers, flowers, crystals, birds and lights. Masks ranging from delicate lace by Kiki de Montparnasse to those worn by Mexican wrestlers were paired with spectacular gowns from every top designer.

Founded in 1966 after severe flooding in Venice, Save Venice has raised over $20 million since its inception to restore over 400 works of art and architecture in the culturally rich city.

The theme of this year's ball was "Enchanted Garden," which could be part of the reason it felt particularly extravagant. Attendees went all out to embrace the theme, with some patrons wearing no less than a small shrub fixated to their updos. Many eschewed masks in favor of elaborate headpieces, which made them far easier to recognize and chat with over Champagne than those who wore, for example, full rubber horse head masks. There is a big incentive to go all out, as fashion arbiters Hamish Bowles and Derek Blasberg served as judges for a number of "best mask" contests in various categories. So the rumor that certain individuals spent no less than 120 hours on their costumes is not too surprising.

With sponsors Dolce & Gabbana and Ferrari, the evening was definitively Italian—celebrating the heritage, culture, beauty and opulence of Venice. I paired my gold Carmen Marc Valvo dress with a gold filigree mask studded with crystals, but after seeing the creations from other guests I realized I need to up my game for next year's ball. Maybe if I start planning now, I can wrangle a nod from whatever fabulous judges they're sure to line up!

How To Do Disney In Style

BY ALICIA PIAZZA

IF YOU HAVE CHILDREN, YOU WILL HAVE TO MAKE YOUR way to Orlando, Florida at some point. There are many hotel choices that surround the Disney Parks, but I think if you are going to spend the day with Mikey, Donald, and Tigger... you might as well lap in luxury back at the hotel. To do this, I suggest The Waldorf-Astoria Orlando. A short 15 minutes away from the park, it is close enough to view the fireworks from your suites, but still be worlds away.

The Waldorf Orlando is positioned on 482 acres, is surrounded by a beautiful golf course. The lobby is grand and covered in marble; the pool is spectacular and has plenty of cabanas, perfect for taking a day off from the parks. The hotel also has a beautiful bar that serves small bites and boasts a large wine selection – something we always look for. Forget the parks, the food alone is worth the trip; there are actually 12 restaurants on-site, including the exceptional Bull and Bear and La Luce by Donna Scala.

Let's face it, Disney can be a beat-down for parents and The Waldorf takes the edge off. Kids can play in the day and night "kids club" while dad exercises in the 24,000-foot fitness center, plays golf or takes to the jogging and bicycle paths, while mom can spa. This can be just the right antidote to theme park overload and a happy compromise for the whole family. It has all the sophistication and luxury parents enjoy and all the lights and attractions of the so-called "happiest place on earth." The surrounding landscape is gorgeous and every window looks at beauty. The best thing about the Waldorf is that it is classy and there is really nothing Disney about it, it's the perfect place to take off your Mickey ears and relax.
